Avocados – Mexico’s harvest is slow to recover from the recent heavy rains and work slowdown. Pricing is very high, quality is good to fair, and fully ripened product may be less available. #2 Grade, 60 CT and smaller size fruit is the best value.

Tomatoes – The overall supply situation continues to be very poor, due to recent freezing and flooding in Mexico. Florida’s harvest is improved, but not enough to offset the Mexican shortfall. Quality remains fair, with pale coloring. Romas in particular are extremely scarce, and orders may be shorted.

Squash – Supplies continue to be limited for both Zucchini and Yellow in all parts of the country. Quality is fair, and pricing is higher than normal. Cold-weather squashes such as Butternut and Acorn are still in good supply, and are better cost and quality options.

Cucumbers – Mexico’s extremely light harvest, coupled with widespread wind scarring on the Honduran imports, has continued to affect supplies and quality on all field-grown cucumbers. Pricing is higher than normal, and quality is fair. Select-grade product is the best value.
